OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT

March 5, 1925

The National Council, Delta Sigma Pi,

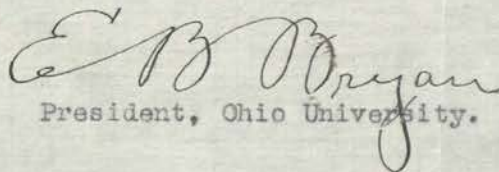

Gentlemen:

I have the honor to write in support of the petition of Phi Gamma Epsilon, a local professional fraternity in our School of Commerce.

The personnel of this group is excellent. The young men stand high in scholarship and are representative men on the campus.

You may be interested to know that the School of Commerce at Ohio University has excellent standing throughout the country.

Signed,

President, Ohio University.

Gentlemen:

I have before me the names of the young men who are petitioning you for a chapter of Delta Sigma Pi at Ohio University. It is evident to me that good judgment has been exercised in the selection of this group. I believe these men are worthy of consideration wherever capable, ambitious, reliable men are wanted. If they are so fortunate as to receive favorable action on their petition, they can be relied upon to guard well the honor of your Fraternity at Ohio University.

Respectfully submitted,

C. M. Copeland

Gentlemen:

As a member of Delta Sigma Pi, I have carefully considered the responsibility attached to my recommending a local commerce fraternity.

However, the membership of Pi Gamma Epsilon is composed of the outstanding students who are enrolled in Commerce. Their grades will stand close scrutiny. Their school and business activities are numerous and profitable.

The general situation of fraternities at Ohio University is such that extremely favorable progress can be made by a new fraternity, especially one which has a charter from a national fraternity.

Practically every department on the campus, no matter how small, supports one or more departmental clubs. Pi Gamma Epsilon has no competition, as the Commerce Club is weak. One of the first things, then, that a recognized commerce fraternity might do here, would be to build up interest in commerce organizations.

The majority of the members of Pi Gamma Epsilon comes from the smaller of the Ohio towns. And where is a professional attitude more necessary than in the small town?

The large portion of the membership which is now unattached to social fraternities, assures member interest. No freshmen are in this year's group, so there will be ample opportunity to select new members next year from the sophomore class.

Continuity of the organization here is assured by the present class of members. Ohio University has just been admitted to the American Association of Universities. The state legislature is granting it a largely increased budget each biennium (nearly $1,500,000 this next biennium)

Ohio University is a growing institution. Consequently there is ever a growing opportunity for good work to be done by a chapter of a national professional commerce fraternity- Delta Sigma Pi.

Fraternally,

Karl D. Reyer (Nu 43)

LEGAL ACT TO ESTABLISH
OHIO UNIVERSITY AT ATHENS

" That there shall be a University instituted and established in the town of Athens,  for the instruction of youth in all the various branches of the liberal arts and sciences, for the promotion of good education, virtue, religion, and morality, and for conferring all the degrees and literary honors granted in similar institutions."

(Section 1, Territorial Act, January 9, 1802.)

"Whereas, institutions for the liberal education of youth are essential to the progress of arts and sciences, important to morality, virtue, and religion, friendly to the peace, order, and prosperity of society, and honorable to the government that encourages and patronizes them," etc.

(Preamble, Act of Ohio Legislature,
February 18, 1802.)

HISTORY OF THE ORIGIN AND GROWTH OF OHIO UNIVERSITY

The origin of the Ohio University is contemporary with the beginning of the State; hence it goes back to the famous Ordinance of 1787, by which a government was established for the Northwest Territory. Along with the adoption of this charter, there went a contract between the Ohio Company and Congress for land northwest of the Ohio River, donated by Congress to the use of the future citizens of the region to be settled, two entire townships of land as a perpetual endowment for a university. Subsequent action by the old Northwest Territorial legislature, dated January 9, 1802, made provision "that there shall be a university instituted and established in the town of Athens" named the American Western University. Progress prior to this time had been greatly retarded by Indian wars.

Dr. Manasseh Cutler, an alumnus of Yale, was a leader in the work of creating and successfully establishing the university, the first educational institution to be endowed by Congress. He also planned the organization of the college, modeling its charter and courses largely from those of Yale and Harvard. In 1804, the corporate name was changed to Ohio University, and the State assumed the trusteeship of the University.

On account of lack of funds as well as time in which to devise and execute the plans, it was not until the spring of 1808 that the institution thus provided for was opened to students, with the Rev. Jacob Lindley as the first President, The first Commencement occurred on March 3, 1815, with two graduates, one of whom became the Honorable Thomas Ewing, twice United States Senator from Ohio, and twice a member of the President's Cabinet.

Due to depressed financial support and lack of attendance, college work was suspended at Ohio University between the years 1845 and 1848. This was the first and only time in its history that the college has been inactive. Since that time the State has made direct appropriations of funds for the support of the institution. After surviving these difficulties in its early career, and with more than a century of growth and progress and membership in the Association of American Universities, Ohio University has entered upon an era of advancement unsurpassed.

With the inauguration of Dr. E. B. Bryan, formerly President of Colgate University, as President of the University in 1921, a period of unusual advancement has begun. Evidence of this progress may be seen in the large increase in registration, the upbuilding of the faculty and curriculum, and the construction of three new buildings in the past three years. The appropriations from the State have increased regularly, so that the total income for the present biennium will be over $1,450,000.

BUILDINGS

Due to the fact that Ohio University is state-supported, new buildings are continually being erected in accordance with an extensive building program. Two buildings are now under construction, the Manual Arts Building and the Teachers' Training School. The Memorial Auditorium, the gift of loyal alumni, students, and friends, will soon be a reality, construction beginning next spring. This auditorium will seat three thousand people and will cost approximately $300,000. A splendid feature of the new auditorium will be a pipe organ rivalling the finest in any university.

The principal buildings at present are given below:

Manasseh Cutler Hall was erected in 1817 and is the oldest college edifice west of the Allegheny Mountains.

Fine Arts Building is nearly a century old.

Ewing Hall was named in honor of the Honorable Thomas Ewing, 1815, first graduate of Ohio University and a prominent figure in national politics in the first half of the nineteenth century.

Carnegie Library, constructed in 1905, owes its existence to the late Andrew Carnegie. The University Museum is located in the basement.

Science Hall was completed in 1912.

Agricultural Building contains complete modern equipment for the teaching of the agricultural sciences.

Ellis Hall was named in honor of the late President of the University for his distinguished service in the regeneration of Ohio University.

Men's Union, completely controlled by the men of the University provides offices for the various activities and publications and meeting rooms and amusements for the men of the university.

Men's Gymnasium, completed last year, is declared to be the largest and most complete university gymnasium in Ohio. It was designed by the late Frank L. Packard, who designed the United States Building at the Rio de Janeiro Exposition.

Women's Gymnasium was formerly the University gymnasium, but was turned over to the exclusive use of the women upon the completion of the new gymnasium.

Howard Hall, Boyd Hall, and Lindley Hall are dormitories for the women of the University. They are all named in honor of past presidents of Ohio University.

STUDENT TRADITIONS

The Y.M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. Mixer: This occasion affords an unusually good opportunity for both the new and the old students to get acquainted with each other. It is held in the Gymnasium the first week of the first semester and never fails to start the year off with fine spirit.

The Home-Coming Game: This is Ohio's big day of the year for it combines all the thrills of the best game of the year with the joys of reunion of the old "grads" and friends of the University.

Founder's Day: Since Ohio University came into being on February 18, 1804, the anniversary of that date is always celebrated with fitting exercises.

The Skit Show: An occasion which is always eagerly looked forward to. It consists of a number of "short turns and encores" staged by the women's organizations of the campus.

The Doll Show: This pleasing and colorful affair is given each winter in the Women's Gymnasium under the auspices of the Woman's League.

The Thanksgiving Party: A very happy and informal affair given each Thanksgiving by the combined Y's for those students who are remaining on the Campus over this vacation.

The Junior Prom: A very important social affair for the elite of the campus.

Senior Day: The first scene of the final act of the annual drama, "The Passing of the Seniors." It is also the occasion for the announcement of the Torch and Cresset elections.

The Alumni-Varsity Game: This is an event of Commencement Week when the old graduates stack up against the Varsity nine.

The Torch Sing: On this occasion the men's organizations of the campus compete in a singing contest in the nature of an serenade opposite Lindley Hall for the Goldsberry Cup. This event also comes during Commencement Week.

ATHLETICS.

Rapid strides are being made in athletics due to the splendid personnel of the coaching staff, the new gymnasium (which is the largest in the state) and complete equipment, and an extensive athletic field.

Head Coaches are:

Football.	Don C. Peden
Baseball.	Don C. Peden
Basketball.	B. T. Grover
Track.	H. G. Ciaugue
Trainer.	Thor Olson

The football season at Ohio University this year was a creditable one despite the fact that the Green and White won only four of the eight games played. Six of the games were with other Ohio Conference teams. The last game of the season, with Ohio Wesleyan, resulted in a 6 to 0 score in favor of the Green and White. In winning this game, Ohio University defeated a team which as aspirations to join the Big Ten Conference.

Ohio's basketball team has opened the present season in good shape. Last year, the Green and White basketeers finished the season with a conference record of nine wins and three defeats. In the last four years, Ohio University has met sixty-five college basketball teams with a record of fifty-four wins and eleven defeats, and won the conference championship in 1921.

This year witnesses an increased interest in track. Varsity men and Freshmen are already getting into condition for the meets to be held this spring. The requirement for a letter in track is a place in the Big Six meet at Ohio State.

Ohio's intercollegiate athletics do not by any means form the main part of the athletic program. It is desired to have every man and woman at Ohio University take part in some form of competitive contest. To this end an even greater enlargement of this year's intramural program has been made. Mr. Grover has charge of intramural athletics for men and Miss Carson and Miss Savage are promoting an excellent program for women.

FRATERNITIES AT OHIO

(Extract from Yearbook, 1924)

The past year, viewed in retrospect, may be seen to mark a distinct, and, we believe, a permanent advance in the history of Greek-letter fraternities at Ohio University.

Materially it has seen the erection of two sumptuous fraternity houses and the acquisition of other valuable property. In a more tangible, but equally real way, it is significant.

Recently established fraternities have made noteworthy progress, by an improvement of personnel and by application of an ever-growing fund of experience, toward the solution of such problems as confront the young organization. Older fraternities have attained a greater realization of their ideals. And in connection with this development, it is pleasing to note the lowering of the barrier that usually exists between those societies of established tradition and those whose records remain to be made.

Of greater significance still is the partial elimination of the hostility between Greek and Barb, which has been an obstacle to any concerted action on the part of the student body, particularly in the sphere of athletics.

It is in the further development of the fraternity system, long since established on the campus, that the future of Ohio spirit lies. Membership in a fraternity confers a sense of equality, presents an opportunity for association, and engenders a feeling of responsibility toward college and fraternity in the presence of which embittered disloyalty and indifference do not thrive. A wise administration is quick to realize the impaired potentialities of a student body with a dearth of fraternities. It is our wish that the Athenas of succeeding years will attest, each more strongly, to the satisfaction of this need at Ohio.

HISTORY OF THE SCHOOL OF COMMERCE

Commercial subjects were first offered at Ohio University in the fall of 1893. Courses were offered in accounting, stenography, and typewriting. Certificates were granted to those students who completed one year of commercial work. After completing four years of collegiate work this method permitted the student to receive a Certificate in Commerce together with the degree of Bachelor of Arts. When the certificate was discontinued in 1913, 390 students had taken advantage of this short commercial course.

A two year commercial course was inaugurated in 1902, and in 1909 a special two year course for teachers of stenography and typewriting was announced. The satisfaction with these courses was well indicated by the increased enrollment in the School of Commerce. In 1915 the enrollment warranted the installation of a four year course with the degree of A. B. in Commerce. Since 1915 the School of Commerce has expanded rapidly, both in enrollment and in the number of courses offered. At present the School offers training in five groups of study: General, Accounting, Finance, Marketing, and Advertising. There has been a regular increase in enrollment each year; this year it is approximately three hundred, with thirty-nine in the graduating class of 1925 who will receive the degree, A. B. in Commerce.

Since its inception, the School of Commerce has been under the guidance of the present Director, Professor C. M. Copeland. In addition to a staff of full time instructors, men connected with various business concerns also instruct in the School.

COMMERCE STATISTICS

Complete statistics for the School of Commerce are shown on page twelve of the enrollment analysis which accompanied the other petition.

It should be pointed out that many of the two year commerce students later change to the A. B. in Commerce course; also many of the straight A. B. students who elect commerce courses in their freshman and sophomore years later change to the A. B. in Commerce. With a chapter of Delta Sigma Pi here, the straight A. B. students would have an added incentive to enroll for the A. B. in Commerce.

HISTORY OF PI GAMMA EPSILON

Before the formation of Pi Gamma Epsilon, a number of efforts had been made to found an honorary commercial organization at Ohio University. Each of these efforts died in its infancy due to failure to provide for perpetuation.

The School of Commerce of Ohio University, keeping pace with the rapid progress that the University as a whole is making, has enlarged its curriculum from time to time and has included in the four-year commerce course those subjects which meet the fundamental and specialized requirements of the business man. The reputation of the School of Commerce has attracted a considerable number of high-calibre men who possess the ability to make good in the world of business.

It was from such a student group of junior and senior rank in the School of Commerce that Pi Gamma Epsilon selected its members. This honorary commercial fraternity was established in October of 1923. Its members were chosen upon the basis of excellence of work in commerce, participation in campus activities and strength of character. The standards insisted upon created a strong and active fraternity.

Meetings were held once a month, with special meetings for initiations. At the regular meetings, individual members read papers of general or special interest in the field of commerce. Thus the organization served not only as a mode of recognition for meritorious scholarship, but also as a means to intellectual advancement is their chosen field of endeavor. After each meeting smokers were held. These smokers enabled the brothers to become better acquainted with each other and promoted a fine spirit of goodwill within the group.

The new year of 1925 finds Pi Gamma Epsilon gaining in strength and fulfilling more completely its purpose on the campus of Ohio University. Eleven alumni and active members are carrying on the work so effectively begun in 1923. A carefully selected list of prospects is certain to yield between twelve and fifteen additional members at the close of this semester.

With the backing of a national charter, the local chapter would expect to become more active than ever in the affairs of the School of Commerce and thus become one of the outstanding organizations on the campus of Ohio University. Already the fraternity is recognized as an honor well worth striving for, and the prestige added by national standing would be certain to place it among the first of the honorary organizations of Ohio University.
